

Russian greasy wool supplier now also offers wool top

More and more companies in Europe are appreciating Russian wool, according to Sergey Puzanov Director of WoolSlav. 'More Russian wool is being purchased by European, Indian and Chinese wool buyers. Some parts of Russia produce excellent quality merino. It is competitively priced and is tested by international testing houses'.

Sergey Puzanov Slavyane Wool Managing Director

WoolSlav is the biggest exporter of Russian wool and purchases up to 2,000 tons of greasy wool and up to 300 tons of feather and down material annually.

WoolSlav supplies merino wool, semi-fine wool, semi coarse wool, wool tow, wool clip (hide-shorn), and scoured wool. The company recently expanded its product list and now offers wool top through its offices in Mumbai, Biella and Beijing.

'With the wool processing industry under pressure from higher wool prices and a lack of demand, accessing and using an alternative wool supply has become more important', says Mr Puzanov. 'Our customers appreciate our reliable service and the quality of wool and wool top that we supply'.

'We have many wool processing customers that are now quite familiar with Russian merino wool', says Mr Puzanov who lives and works in Beijing. 'Our offices can facilitate quick and easy communication. We have been supplying wool processors in Europe, India and other countries around the world with Russian wool for many years and we are very familiar with their requirements'.

WoolSlav operates a number of strategically located wool collection points in Stavropol to which wool is delivered direct from farms and sorted by experienced staff. Particular attention is paid to sorting wool, based on client requirement, and the employment of the best packing materials.

'The people that work for us are industry professionals who have been involved in wool for the greater part of their working lives. Because of this we are able to guarantee quality and answer customer demand quickly and professionally. We source the right wool for each client's particular purpose and this has always been the focus of our business.'

WoolSlav also works closely with partner companies in New Zealand and Australia and can supply wool companies with wool of most origins.

The company also has direct links with an expanding Russian textile industry and can easily facilitate introductions of foreign companies that are interested in joint ventures in Russia. 'Our competitive prices and our good understanding of the Russian market make us an ideal business partner for companies interested in buying wool of all origins, and for companies that are interested in expanding into Russia', concludes Mr Puzanov.
